Albert A. Bell, Jr. was born in South Carolina in 1945 but for over thirty years has lived in Michigan ... his wife is a psychologist and he has four adult children and a grandson. He began writing in high school and sold his first magazine article in 1972. His first novel, Daughter of Lazarus, was published in 1988. Since the late 1990s he has had eight books published. The second novel in the series about Pliny the Younger, The Blood of Caesar, was named one of the 5 Best Mysteries of 2008 by Library Journal. The Secret of the Lonely Grave won the Evelyn Thurman Young Readers' Award in 2008. Mysteries are his favorite type of reading (and writing), but he also enjoys baseball and college basketball, and anything that has to do with ancient Rome.

Many Bloody Returns
Tales of Birthdays with Bite
Edited by Charlaine Harris and Toni L. P. Kelner

You're invited to a celebration of vampires by a baker's dozen of favorite authors. In bestselling author Charlaine Harris's "Dracula Night," Sookie Stackhouse is the only human at the annual commemoration of Dracula's birth. And Jim Butcher's popular crime-solving wizard Harry Dresden heads to a role-playing party to give his vampire brother a present in "It's My Birthday." Sink your teeth into these and eleven more frighteningly original stories, each a fresh take on the concept of what birthdays mean to the undead.
