Select Individual Database

The screenshot shows the KYVL QuickSearch interface. At the top, the logo for Kentucky Virtual Library is displayed alongside the search bar. The search bar contains the text "for Everyone" and a "Go" button. Below the search bar, there are navigation tabs for "About KYVL / Ask", "Databases", "For College & Adults", "For Librarians", and "For Professionals". The "Databases" tab is selected, and the breadcrumb trail shows "CPE / KYVL / Databases / EBSCO / Databases".

The main content area is titled "EBSCO" and features a list of databases on the left side, which is circled in brown. The list includes:

- Academic Search Complete
- Agricola
- AHFS Consumer Medication Information
- Business Source Premier
- CINAHL with Full Text
- Consumer Health Complete
- EBSCOhost
- ERIC
- Funk & Wagnalls New Encyclopedia
- GreenFILE
- Health Source - Consumer Edition
- LISTA - Library, Information & Technology Abstracts
- MAS Ultra - School Edition
- MasterFILE Premier
- MEDLINE
- Middle Search Plus

The right side of the page displays details for three databases:

- Academic Search Complete: Includes a description of the database, a search icon, and links to "Academic Search Poster" and "Academic Search User Guide". A large yellow arrow points to this section.
- Agricola: Includes a description of the database and a search icon.
- AHFS Consumer Medication Information: Includes a description of the database and a search icon.

At the bottom, the "Business Source Premier" database is partially visible.

MAS Ultra - School Edition

This comprehensive database contains full text for top high-school magazines including America's Civil War, American History, Archaeology, Astronomy, Bioscience, Civil War Times, CollegeXpress Magazine, Congressional Digest, Discover, History Today, Nation, National Review, New Republic, New Scientist, Popular Science, Science News, Scientific American, Smithsonian, World War II, and much more. All full-text articles are assigned a reading level indicator (Lexiles). MAS Ultra School Edition also provides full text for more than 159,000 biographies and primary source documents, hundreds of reference books (including the Columbia Encyclopedia and the CIA World Fact Book), an image collection containing photos, maps, flags and color PDFs and expanded full-text backfiles (back to 1975) for key magazines.

MasterFILE Premier

Designed specifically for public libraries, this database provides full text for magazines, reference books and primary source documents. It also includes an extensive image collection containing photos, maps and flags. MasterFILE Premier contains full text for general reference magazines and publications that cover a wide-range of subject areas including business, health, education, general science and multicultural issues. PDF backfiles are available as far back as 1922 for key publications including American Libraries, Foreign Affairs, History Today, Library Journal, National Review, Saturday Evening Post and more.

MEDLINE

MEDLINE provides authoritative medical information on medicine, nursing, dentistry, veterinary medicine, the health care system, pre-clinical sciences, and much more. Created by the National Library of Medicine, MEDLINE uses MeSH (Medical Subject Headings) indexing with tree numbers, tree hierarchy and explosion capabilities to search abstracts from over 4,800 current biomedical journals. Included are citations from Index Medicus, International Nursing Index, Index to Dental Literature, HISTLINE, SPACELINE, PREMEDLINE, AIDSLINE, BIOETHICSLINE, and HealthSTAR.

Middle Search Plus

Designed for middle school libraries, this database contains full text for popular middle school magazines, full-text biographies and historical essays. In addition, it includes primary source documents, reference books and a vast image collection. Middle Search Plus contains primary source documents including Essential Documents in American History and reference books such as the Funk & Wagnalls New World Encyclopedia and the Encyclopedia of Animals. Full-text magazines include Sports Illustrated Kids, Scholastic News, National Geographic and dozens more. All full-text articles are assigned reading level indicators (Lexiles) that provide educators with an estimate of the results reading difficulty and the approximate grade-level reading ability required for comprehension. Lexiles help teachers meet the needs of students with varying reading abilities and interests and allow students to read along at their own pace.

RETURN TO NEWTOWN—5 YEARS LATER REMEMBERING SANDY HOOK.

They should be tweens now, discovering algebra, middle school dances and the truth about Santa Claus. But the 20 first graders of Sandy Hook Elementary School who—along with six of their school’s faculty—were lost in a mass shooting on Dec. 14, 2012, will be forever 6- and 7-year-olds, wiggling their first loose baby tooth and tracing smiley faces on frosty car windows. “Not a day goes by, not even a minute, when I don’t think about Jesse and miss him,” says Scarlett Lewis, of the 6-year-old son she lost that day. “He was the life of the party, bouncing off the walls with energy and fun. The silence when we came back to the house was deafening and sometimes still is.”

Finding some way to move on from unspeakable pain is something 26 families struggle to do every day since a disturbed gunman’s 10-minute rampage in Newtown, Conn., forever changed their lives, their town—the world. Marking five years since the massacre, People pays tribute to those who died that day and honors the legacies they left behind. For Nicole Hockley, who keeps her 6-year-old son Dylan’s ashes in an urn at her bedside—“I’ll say ‘Hey’ and sometimes ask him for a little bit of help if I know it’s going to be a hard day”—working to prevent other school shootings is part of keeping her son’s memory alive. “I can’t stand to have Dylan’s life be lost in vain,” says Hockley, “and then forgotten.”

RETURN TO NEWTOWN—5 YEARS LATER REMEMBERING SANDY HOOK.

Olivia Engel, 6

The giggly Daisy Scout died before she got to be the angel in her church's nativity play. Her family gave funds to a dog park so that "Olivia will continue to bring joy to this community."

Josephine Gay, 7

"Joey" loved purple, the Baltimore Ravens and cupcakes. "We keep her at the heart of everything we do," says her mom, Michele, cofounder of Safe and Sound Schools (safeandsoundschools.org).

Dawn Hochsprung, 47

The principal, beloved by kids and parents alike for the kind of spirit that had her leading conga lines at school dances, died after lunging at the gunman. "Five years later I choose to remember the good times—her smile, her laughter and every time she told me I'll always be her baby girl," says daughter Erica Lafferty, now an activist for safer gun laws.

Jesse Lewis, 6

His loving personality inspired his mom, Scarlett, to launch jesselewischooselove.org to help kids with social and emotional learning. The holidays were Jesse's favorite time of year, says his dad, Neil Heslin, who remembers setting up the Christmas tree with his son just before the shooting. "I didn't have the heart to take it down," says Heslin, "until this year."

Victoria Soto, 27

Soto was "the fun teacher" who loved flamingos and finding the perfect Christmas tree, says her sister Carlee Soto Parisi, whose family started a memorial fund to give scholarships of $5,026—"the number 26 to keep in mind why we do it," Parisi says—to teachers who embody her "live, laugh, love" spirit. "We will not let Vicki's memory die," says Parisi.

Charlotte Bacon, 6

"She loved tae kwon do, the color pink and any animal," says the foundation in her name, which awards veterinary-medicine scholarships to honor her dream of becoming a veterinarian.

Jack Pinto, 6

Dedicating a Jersey Shore playground in Jack's name in 2013, Dean Pinto said it was the perfect memorial for his son, who had a "love for play and playgrounds [and] helping people."

Benjamin Wheeler, 6

He loved lighthouses, so community members started Ben's Lighthouse (benslighthouse.org) to help give kids "the tools and self-confidence to stand tall and shine bright," says Ben's

Anne Marie Murphy, 52

The special-education aide called her four children the "four pillars of her life," her husband, Michael, recalled at her funeral. But she treated her students as her own too and died cradling

Catherine Hubbard, 6

"Catherine was all about caring for the animals," says her mother, Jenny Hubbard, who founded an animal sanctuary in her name in Newtown (cvhfoundation.org).

Their smiles frozen in time, the 26 children and educators gunned down at a Connecticut school in 2012 live on in the hearts and labors of their families

They should be tweens now, discovering algebra, middle school dances and the truth about Santa Claus. But the 20 first graders of Sandy Hook Elementary School who—along with six of their school's faculty—were lost in a mass shooting on Dec. 14, 2012, will be forever 6- and 7-year-olds, wiggling their first loose baby tooth and tracing smiley faces on frosty car windows. "Not a day goes by, not even a minute, when I don't think about Jesse and miss him," says Scarlett Lewis, of the 6-year-old son she lost that day. "He was the life of the party, bouncing off the walls with energy and fun. The silence when we came back to the house was deafening and sometimes still is."

Finding some way to move on from unspeakable pain is something 26 families struggle to do every day since a disturbed gunman's 10-minute rampage in Newtown, Conn., forever changed their lives, their town—the world. Marking five years since the massacre, People pays tribute to those who died that day and honors the legacies they left behind. For Nicole Hockley, who keeps her 6-year-old son Dylan's ashes in an urn at her bedside—"I'll say 'Hey' and sometimes ask him for a little bit of help if I know it's going to be a hard day"—working to prevent other school shootings is part of keeping her son's memory alive. "I can't stand to have Dylan's life be lost in vain," says Hockley, "and then forgotten."

INNOCENTS LOST

The 26 who died at Sandy Hook

Ana Marquez-Greene, 6

A daughter of musicians, Ana loved singing and "danced to all the music she heard," her father, Jimmy, said in 2012. "It is almost unfathomable to me that she's been gone almost as long as we had her," mom Nelba wrote on Facebook on Sept. 15. "There have been 1,736 days since Ana was murdered ... and exactly that many days since my heart was whole."

Mary Sherlach, 56

"A good day for Mary was when she could spend all day with kids," says the school psychologist's widower, Bill. He now works with Sandy Hook Promise and, with their two daughters, started Mary's Fund to give kids free counseling and other mental-health care. "We are continuing her work," says Bill. "You don't get over grief; you just live with it."

Chase Kowalski, 7

A runner since he took his first steps, Chase completed his first triathlon at 6. His parents founded the CMAK Foundation and created the Race4Chase to teach kids to run, swim and bike. "I see the joy on their faces, and I know that's what he would have been doing," says mom Rebecca. "I get to see these kids grow up when I don't get to see Chase grow up."

"I see the joy on their faces, and I know that's what he would have been doing," says mom Rebecca. "I get to see these kids grow up when I don't get to see Chase grow up."

Daniel Barden, 7

Daniel was the boy who looked out for everyone—"from his classmates and his family to the worms on the sidewalk," says his dad, Mark. "He can't do that anymore, so I try to do that work for him." Mark cofounded the nonprofit Sandy Hook Promise, which trains students and faculty to respond to early-warning signs of mental illness that can lead to school shootings. "I wanted to honor my little Daniel," Mark says.

Dylan Hockley, 6

"There's a theory that if a butterfly flaps his wings on one side of the world, it can cause a hurricane on the other," says his mom, Nicole Hockley. "Dylan is my butterfly. When I visit schools and look at the kids, I see butterflies. They're the ones who are going to create the change that will change our country."

Lauren Rousseau, 30

The first-grade teacher is missed by the boyfriend she left behind, Anthony Lusardi III, who is still close with her mom, Terri. "I [recently] surprised Terri for lunch," he says. "She told me, 'Lauren would have loved that.'"

Noah Pozner, 6

Arielle, Noah's twin sister, is 11 now, says their father, Lenny, who moved the family to Florida after the shooting. "I see my daughters grow, and I wonder what Noah would look like now. He was a perfect little boy."

Avielle Richman, 6

Her parents created the Avielle Foundation to study the science behind violence and compassion. What would Avielle have become if she'd had the chance to grow up? "An artist and a spy. Oh, and a fairy princess, and a writer," reads the website.

Rachel D'Avino, 29

A therapist working with students on the autism spectrum, Rachel now has her name on a scholarship for those continuing her life's passion. "The scholarship means a lot to us," says her sister Hannah. "But it's also heartbreaking."

Caroline Previdi, 6

When she died, she was planning to buy Christmas presents for underprivileged kids. Today her family runs a foundation that gives those kids access to the things Caroline loved—dance, art, music and sports.

Jessica Rekos, 6

She loved whales, couldn't wait to sell Girl Scout cookies and wanted to "ride forever" on horseback. Now the Jessica Rekos Foundation (jessicarekos.org) sponsors orca research and equestrian lessons.

Olivia Engel, 6

The giggly Daisy Scout died before she got to be the angel in her church's nativity play. Her family gave funds to a dog park so that "Olivia will continue to bring joy to this community."

Charlotte Bacon, 6

"She loved tae kwon do, the color pink and any animal," says the foundation in her name, which awards veterinary-medicine scholarships to honor her dream of becoming a veterinarian.
