Parental Promblems

"I felt overwhelmed by the mamarazzi"

Picture time was so intimidating! I had a huge crush on my date, and we were squished between 12 other couples. It was awkward enough being so close to him, but on top of that, all of these parents were there—including mine. There were cameras flashing and moms with giant iPads shouting, "Look at me!" After about 30 minutes, my friends and I were over it, and we told the adults it was time to stop. The funny thing was, once we were on our bus headed to prom, we started texting, posting, and sharing our parents' photos. I realized how awesome it was to have so many versions from different angles! Plus, later that night, my date asked me to be his girlfriend—and we're still together. I'm so thankful we have so many pictures of what I consider our first official date—and I actually wish

"My mom was more excited than I was"

My mom never went to prom, but I didn't think that would mean she'd be obsessed with mine. Months in advance, she started asking, "How will you do your hair?" and "What kind of dress do you want?" It was so annoying and stressed me out. She'd even come into my room late at night and want to look at prom-inspo pics on Pinterest. Then she booked a trip for the two of us, plus my sister and my grandma, to Miami, just to go dress shopping! I had to go along with it because she'd already arranged the flights, hotel—everything! She dragged me from store to store, and on the second day I found an amazing purple gown. When I saw the happy look on her face, I forgot being bothered and I realized how lucky I was to be spending the weekend with the most important women in my life. Now that I'm at college, we don't get so much time together and I miss it. I wish I could tell my 17-year-old self to just chill!

FRIENDS, FAMILY & OTHER LOVES (YOUR CIRCLE)
"My prom date got back together with his ex—and took her instead of me!"
A guy in my friend group didn't have anyone special to go to prom with and neither did I, so we decided to go together. Three days before the big event, I got a text from his best friend saying my date had gotten back together with his ex—and he was going with her instead. My stomach dropped—now I had to find a replacement! I tried, but it was too late. I considered not going, but my mom told me I couldn't do prom-weekend activities if I didn't go to prom. So I sucked it up and went by myself. Taking pictures was weird, so I posed with my dog! At the venue, I was kind of embarrassed at first, but then everyone broke off from their dates and hung out with friends, and I got over it. I wasn't even sad when I saw the guy I'd planned to go with. And because I didn't have to worry about awkwardly dancing with a date, I just let loose!

"Our parents met for the first time"

My boyfriend and I went to different schools, and before prom, our parents had never met. My mother insisted on inviting his mom and dad to our house for preprom pictures. I was so nervous. Would my BF feel like I wanted us to get married or something? Would his super-quiet dad find mine loud and obnoxious? I told my parents about things his parents liked, so they had conversation starters. The afternoon began so formally, but when my dad cracked a joke, the mood lifted. The entire focus was on me and my date, and I realized there was nothing to worry about. And it was great practice for future parents-meet-parents moments.

WHAT HE'S THINKING ABOUT PROM

The Fosters' Noah Centineo, 19, shares his big-night blunder and stay-chill tactics.

"I believe that stressing about a situation that's supposed to be fun defeats the purpose of having a good time. So I was very laid-back when it came to my prom—maybe too laid-back. I was asked to attend a friend's prom, and I rented my tuxedo less than an hour before our group left for the dance. My date was waiting for me to come and take pictures! Generally, though, I think preparation is key. It's a good idea to plan a preprom bonding session—that benefits both of you. Guys know that this night means everything to their dates and just want to make it the best it can be for them."

Emma Benshoff

"I got bullied on my school's dress registry page"

When I was a junior, I was dating a senior. He was coming to my prom, and I was going to his. Every grade had a dress registry on Facebook, and as soon as I had access to the 12th grade one, I posted a picture of my dress. A few minutes later, a popular senior started freaking out in the comments section. She said she was planning to buy the same dress and thought her seniority gave her first
