

Exercises for Describing Resources with RDA

RDA Training for Kentucky Public Libraries

Part 2

- Using the MARC workform included with your exercise materials, describe the following 5 examples using the RDA guidelines.
- Do not worry about access points, fixed fields, call numbers and subject headings; concentrate on the description for this exercise.
- For more help with MARC, you can consult the MARC Standards (<http://www.loc.gov/marc/bibliographic/>) or OCLC's Bibliographic Formats and Standards (<http://www.oclc.org/bibformats/en.html>)

To the best of the publisher's knowledge, all photos but one were of live birds. Due to the elusive nature of the female Indigo Bunting, the only available photo that met identification criteria was of a mounted bird.

Subject Access to Best Books for Beginning Readers

Children's and Young Adult Literature Reference Series

Here's a brand-new, extensively revised edition of the classic guide to "first readers." Use it to encourage independent reading skills in children ages 5-8, to develop your collection for this age group, and to plan thematic literature-based programs.

With a user-friendly, subject-based organization like its companion guide to picture books, A to Zoo, this annotated volume profiles some 3,600 of the best books for emerging readers. First readers feature lively interaction between text and illustration, and cover topics with true kid-appeal.

Entries cover titles published mostly within the past decade (a few classic and benchmark titles are included, as well). Each entry offers bibliographic information, a brief plot summary, and description of illustrations and other features to help you make informed selection and programming decisions.

A list of outstanding first readers, chosen for their exceptional language and treatment of subject, makes collection development easy, and four indexes—title, illustrator, series, and reading level—provide additional access points. Lexile levels are given where available, making this volume particularly valuable for reading teachers as well as for librarians and parents. A boon to librarians, teachers, and parents.

*I*f you were growing up in the 1930s in the rugged mountains of eastern Kentucky, you'd recognize the pack horse librarian immediately as she came up the trail. Her saddlebags would be filled with books, one of which might be for you. Your heart would race, and you'd be so happy that you'd shout, "The book woman's comin'! She's comin' down the creek!"
