ONLINE CONFERENCES

Feb 9 (11-3:45pm) Leader Talk: Building a Human-centered Workplace in 2023 (Training Industry) In today's world of work, employees are driven by purpose. They want to work for organizations that align with their values and perform meaningful work. To build a human-centered workplace, organizations must invest in their most valuable asset: their people. Learning leaders need to create meaningful learning experiences that foster employee well-being and engagement. Join this Training Industry Leader Talk to gain a better understanding of what a human-centered workplace looks like and how you can take steps this year toward building one in your organization. Visit <https://trainingindustry.com/webinar/>

Feb 24 (9:45-6 pm) Big Talk From Small Libraries 2023 (Nebraska Library Commission) This free one-day online conference is tailored for staff from small libraries - the smaller the better! Each of our speakers is from a library serving fewer than 10,000 people, or is directly partnered with a small library and co-presenting with the library. Topics range from technology to programming to new roles for the library. This event is a great opportunity to learn about the innovative things your colleagues are doing in their small libraries. Everyone is welcome to register and attend, regardless of how big or small your library is. But, if your library serves a few hundred to a few thousand people, this is the day for you! Visit: <http://nlcblogs.nebraska.gov/bigtalk/>

AT YOUR LEISURE - Pre-recorded webinars to view at your convenience

Disability Access and Climate in Libraries (Library Accessibility Alliance)

Participants will expand their awareness of disability, learn to promote accessibility, and consider how to contribute to a positive climate through their beliefs, behaviors, and communications. Visit:

<https://libraryaccessibility.org/events/disability-access-and-climate-libraries>

Holistic Library Service (Infopeople)

Have you dared to imagine showing up to work as your whole self each day? Have you wanted to make the most of your natural inclination to create connections? In this webinar we will discuss what happens when you take Readers Advisory, Reference, Customer Service, Social Work and Community Collaboration and mix it all up in each and every interaction! You will learn what holistic librarianship is and how you can be your whole self. We'll cover many real-life library examples and leave with actionable steps to provide resources and meet customers where they are without depleting yourself. Visit: <https://vimeo.com/697398288>

Reaching Across the Aisle for Library Funding and Other Initiatives (EveryLibrary)

Recent political campaigns and philosophical confrontations online and in the press have destroyed lasting friendships, frayed family ties, and alienated neighbors and co-workers. Social media has devolved into a battleground of nasty diatribes and personal slurs. How can we advocate for libraries in this environment? Visit:

The World Health Organization estimates that 15% of the world's population (more than 1 billion people) have an accessibility need. We understand that content needs to be read and understood by a wide variety of readers – and our internal documentation is no different. How can we be sure that core principles of accessibility are being met, even for ourselves? Different accessibility actions to be discussed include some core ADA suggestions such as alt text or descriptions, heading usage, and font choices. In addition, extra actions such as presenting in multiple formats, clarity of language and purpose, and consistency in formatting will also be discussed.

Am I Making the Right Decision: The Role of Ethics in Volunteer Engagement (Nonprofit Learning Lab)

We all encounter ethical dilemmas in our daily work, but rarely do organizations focus on ethics related to volunteer engagement. This session provides an opportunity for practitioners in volunteer engagement to understand the difference between personal, organizational and professional ethics. The core values and principles identified by the Council for Certification in Volunteer Administration (CCVA) will be shared. Participants will learn a process for ethical decision-making that can be applied in any situation, and then practice this using a real-life scenario related to volunteers. Finally, several specific strategies will be offered for increasing awareness of ethics within an organization and helping both volunteers and staff become more effective at handling ethical dilemmas.

Bite-Sized Digital Citizenship: Scaffolding Big Ideas for Early Elementary Students (edWeb)

Introducing digital citizenship can sometimes feel a little overwhelming, especially when you have limited class time. You may be wondering: When should I talk to my students about it? What are the relevant issues I should bring up? How do I make these conversations fun and engaging? How do I include parents in these conversations? It is never too early to talk to your kids about their digital lives and to help them practice digital citizenship. Research shows kids are getting access to devices at a younger age and that tech plays a role in almost every aspect of their lives—from how they connect with friends to how they learn at school.

NCompass Live: Digital Libraries as Digital Third Place: Virtual Library Programming (Nebraska Library Commission)

The role of libraries as "Third Place" – community building spaces that separate from home and work -- has been noted ever since Ray Oldenberg described the concept in his book, "The Great Good Place." While both academic and public libraries continue to serve in this role as physical third places, what about in an online environment? Simply offering online circulation and reference services is insufficient. This presentation will discuss recent research on loneliness, social media and how strategic design of virtual library programming can enable libraries to continue to fulfill their role as vital third places in digital environments.

Panic-proof Your Nonprofit: Manage Leadership Succession (Nonprofit Hub)

Effective leadership is essential to nonprofits, and an unplanned or poorly executed leadership transition comes with substantial risks. These include interruptions in program delivery, disengagement of volunteers, a loss of institutional knowledge, and even a decrease in external funding. This is reason enough to plan for future transitions ahead of time, but succession planning is about more than emergencies. Succession and leadership development planning are worth your time and attention, as they are key components of sustainability that can make your organization stronger and more vibrant over time.

A Discussion of Cold Storage Theory and Practice for Photographic and Paper-based Records (Connecting to Collections Care)

Storing photographic films, prints, and other paper-based records at low temperature invites the inevitable risk/benefit analysis. What preservation goals can be achieved? How physically safe are the materials? How hard is it to implement? How much does it cost? How restricted is access to the collection? There can be positive answers for all these questions even for small institutions with limited staff and financial resources. One can start small and scale cold storage projects over time if basic concepts are understood. This presentation will also include practical tips and tricks for measuring, monitoring, and passive climate control using sealed cold storage methods. Establishing Design Principles to Center Accessibility into Everyday Decisions (Library Accessibility Alliance)

Libraries are meant for everyone. While libraries have long claimed this to be true, exclusionary practices and inaccessible systems still exist and are extremely difficult to fully eradicate. The act of methodically creating a culture of accessibility hinges on each member of an organization as they seek to ask constructive questions and make decisions that pull the organization in a unified direction. In an attempt to infuse accessibility into the culture at the University of Virginia Library, the library used a collaborative process to establish and adopt a system of four design principles. Through this webinar, participants will learn more about the concept of design principles, including how they can be useful in cultivating intentionally accessible environments, and will come away with tools for beginning these conversations at their own institutions.
