First Question: Why?

There are many barriers for a child in the learning environment.

Many are beyond our help or control.

We can help with underwear.

Second question: Why?

Libraries and schools seem like a natural fit. They aren't.

Third question: Why?

Because we need the publicity.
(And we don't go viral like grumpy cats.)

Is there really a need?

Some of our schools give out 10 pairs of underwear a day.

One school had given out its last pair of new underwear the day that I dropped off its allotment from our last campaign....with five months of school to go.

More kids than you'd believe have no idea where they will be sleeping tonight.

(So...um...yes.)

But how did it come to this?

Because of this woman ↴

Will it be successful?

It's sort of like that starfish.

But....

- One local manufacturer donated $100...which bought about 80 pairs of underwear.
- One lady bought 185 pairs of underwear...because her granddaughter suffered with a bladder problem that had to be medically corrected.
- One local Montessori made collection a school-wide project.
- One local charitable group has made Drop Your Drawers their giving campaign and collected enough funds for over 1200 pairs of underwear.
- Leadership Northern Kentucky made Drop Your Drawers their class giving project for the last three years, donating over 1500 pairs.
- And I'm getting to talk to you and you (hopefully) are concerned about the problem and will help eliminate it.

And....

27,000 is a pretty good number.

Our own number was about 7800.

So...7800 divided by 11 elementary schools (with a few going to a middle school) equals about 700 pairs for each school.

So...how do I get on board?

And will I get cool stuff?

Yes!

ONE image = 10 pairs of donated underwear

ONE image = 10 pairs of donated underwear

The graphic features a lion character holding a sign with the goal of 1,000 pairs of underwear. The sign is placed on a woven basket. The counting board consists of two vertical columns of 10 pairs of underwear icons each, with a legend below each column stating 'ONE image = 10 pairs of donated underwear'. The background is yellow.

(We use a little picture of underwear to fill in blanks as groups of ten are donated.)

Drop Your Drawers @ the Library

WHAT

Drop Your Drawers is a campaign asking for donations of packages of new underwear for children in all public elementary schools in Campbell County. New packages of boys and girls underwear in sizes 4-16 are desperately at local elementary schools.

WHY

The donations will help replenish the schools' supplies of emergency underpants and provide direct assistance to families affiliated with each school's Family Resource Centers. The need is great. Children who have accidents at school miss learning time in the classroom as parents often are unable to bring fresh underwear to their children during school hours. Schools are handing out 30-80 pair of underwear a month!

And...even better...

Kids will have underwear.

Clean underwear.

Underwear that fits.

Replacement underwear for accidents.

Because having underwear...admittedly...is a good thing.

- Ask other organizations and businesses if they would like to donate. We had blood pressure checks last year.
- Water, promotional items to go in the bags and money

Cost of Event

- First Year
 - We spent around 300 dollars on t-shirts
 - Water was donated and some of the cost of t-shirts
 - We also paid for items to go in goody bag
 - Attendance-100
- Second year
 - We spent around 30 dollars on water
 - T-shirts were paid for by donated money
 - Goody bags were filled with promotional items from other businesses and items we had left over from other events
 - Attendance-150

Extras you need to know....

- It's not easy
- Make sure no other events are happening near the 5k to cause traffic
- It takes more staff members than you think to help
- Leave yourself plenty of time to plan, I start in January the 5k isn't till June/July
- Providing water during 5k is necessary
- State or County Road?
- Signs and mapping out the race
- Timing everyone- People who do the race will want to know how long it took them to finish. Download the free app Racetimer

CHARACTER TICKETS

To make your Oxfam Hunger Banquet event more interesting for your guests, we have developed character tickets. Event participants can access information about the individual on their ticket by texting the name of the person on their ticket to 97779. These are portraits, based on real people, intended to illustrate the lives of those who might live in these income groups around the world. Print the tickets on the following pages onto colored paper and have guests draw the character tickets randomly as they arrive. Use a different color for each income group.

- 30 servings (i.e., one-half to three-quarters of a cup) of rice and beans in trays with serving spoons
- 30 small paper plates or bowls
- 30 forks or spoons
- 30 napkins
- 30 cups
- Water in pitchers or another container

HIGH-INCOME GROUP

- 20 dinner-size portions of pasta, salad, and rolls (or whatever is offered)
- 20 nice napkins
- 20 regular plates, glasses, forks, knives, and spoons
- Table linens for the tables
- Juice or soda for 20

PROGRAM

- Keep to 90 minutes or less, as it's difficult to hold people's attention when they're seated on the floor for too long. Let people know either through a program or at the welcome what to expect in terms of speakers, video, etc. This will help you avoid having people leave during or immediately following the meal portion of the banquet.
- Be sure that any speakers have all the information they need, including what the event is about; what their role is; and where they need to be, at what time, and for how long.
- The role of MC is central to the success of the event and must be assigned to someone who can assume this responsibility, including spending time preparing for the role by familiarizing him- or herself with the script and understanding the intended outcome of the event. The MC will often lead the all-important sharing portion of the event and must be able to create an atmosphere that encourages people to speak up.
- Do a run-through on all audiovisual equipment, including the DVD player, microphones, LCD projector, and sound system—to make sure that everything is in working order and that a knowledgeable person is taking responsibility for operating all. Give the AV person a script that indicates the various points at which each piece of equipment will be initiated and for how long.

- Recruit eight to 10 volunteers for the event arrive 60–90 minutes beforehand, dependent on setup required. Develop a list of volunteer tasks on what is about to happen at the event, and assign roles to volunteers. Give them instructions regarding the significance and timing of their tasks.

SAMPLE VOLUNTEER CHECKLIST

- Appoint one person to handle AV equipment (determined by number of entrances to the room).
- Appoint one person to greet and accompany speaker or other special guests. Make sure they know who these people are and what they are doing during the banquet.
- Appoint two to four people to distribute materials (determined by number of entrances to the room).
- Appoint at least one or two people to staff the donation, and information table. You may want more than one table for sign-ups, one at the front and one at the back of the room.
- Appoint two to four people to answer questions (determined by number of entrances to the room).
- Appoint two to four people to answer questions (determined by number of entrances to the room).

THESE SAME PEOPLE OR OTHERS CAN BE GIVEN ADDITIONAL TASKS:

- Two people to serve and wait on the high-income group. This role may include actually putting the food on the table in advance of the start of the banquet. No one wants to be distracting to have people preparing plates while the high-income group is opening the banquet. But this should be done before the need to keep the food warm. It all depends on the particulars of the venue and the way the food is served.
- Two people to serve rice and beans from the 30 people in the middle-income group.
- Two people to deliver the tray of rice with a serving spoon, plates/bowls, and the water and cups to the 50 people in the low-income group. Participants will have to determine for themselves how to split the rice from the communal bowl.
- Four to five people to distribute materials, including pens, either before the event or at the end when you invite people to join Oxfam's online community. (It's often distracting to have people passing out materials while someone is speaking, so you may wish to set out materials throughout the room before the event begins.)

SAMPLE OXFAM HUNGER BANQUET® EVENT SCRIPT

INTRODUCTION

Welcome to the Oxfam Hunger Banquet event. We are here today because more than 2.2 billion people live in poverty.

⏏ [PAUSE]

Nearly 795 million people suffer from chronic hunger.

⏏ [PAUSE]

A child dies from malnutrition or a related, preventable illness nearly every 10 seconds. That's more than 8,000 children a day.

⏏ [PAUSE]

You may think hunger is about too many people and too little food. That is not the case. Our rich and bountiful planet produces enough food to feed every woman, man, and child on earth.

Hunger is about power. Its roots lie in inequalities in access to resources. The results are illiteracy, poverty, war, and the inability of families to grow or buy food.

Hunger affects everyone, in countries rich and poor, in urban and rural areas. But some of us face greater challenges than others. Every day, resources like land and water are becoming harder to access. Global shifts in the climate are adding to the problem, making it difficult for people to sow and harvest crops.

But the situation is far from hopeless: we have made progress. Efforts like yours have helped to decrease the proportion of the world's population living in hunger. But hundreds of millions of people still don't have access to the food they need. Food prices remain volatile, and for many, food that is within reach one day may not be affordable the next.

Meanwhile, the gap between the wealthy few and the many living in poverty is steadily growing wider, putting this progress in jeopardy.

Your presence here today shows that you are concerned. You want to learn more. You want to make a difference.

Today, you join Oxfam in the fight against world hunger.

For decades, Oxfam has been promoting change "from the bottom up" through hundreds of grassroots organizations around the world. Altogether, Oxfam works in more than 90 countries to save lives, develop long-term solutions to

The way we see it, poverty is solvable—a problem rooted in injustice. Eliminate injustice and you can eliminate poverty. We're not saying it will be quick or easy, but it can be done. We won't patch a problem and then disappear. We won't stand by silently and watch others suffer.

Oxfam doesn't impose solutions. We see people's power to change their own lives. We believe that people have the right, and the understanding, to create solutions for their own communities and to control their own futures.

Although we are committed to our community-based work, we know that there are also larger barriers that keep people from thriving. We recognize our responsibility to hold the powerful accountable. That's why, together with people like you, we call on companies and governments to change the policies and practices that keep people trapped in poverty.

We also educate the US public on hunger and poverty issues, which is what this Oxfam Hunger Banquet event is all about.

This event is a metaphor for how food and other resources are inequitably distributed in the world. As such, an Oxfam Hunger Banquet event can only touch upon the issues. We cannot recreate the many complex ways poverty manifests itself. We will not have time to go into all the problems associated with lack of access to health care, education, and employment opportunities, and the realities of the day-to-day struggle for survival.

The one thing I would like you to remember is this: Everyone on earth has the same basic needs; it is only our circumstances—where we live and the culture into which we are born—that differ. Some of us are born into relative prosperity and security, while millions—through no choice of our own—are born into poverty.

As each of us walked in the door here today, we drew our lot at random. Look around, and you can see that equality and balance don't exist here.

Please note: No one section of this room represents a single country. While the US is one of the wealthiest countries on earth, 46.7 million Americans live in poverty. More than 20 percent of children in the US—or one in every five American children—live below the poverty line. Stark inequalities
