Section 1
Overview of the Kentucky Department for Libraries and Archives

A) Introduction

The Kentucky Department for Libraries and Archives (KDLA) has been the official repository for Kentucky’s state agency publications since 1958 and has over 45,000 state publications. These state publications offer a rich source of information on the Commonwealth’s history and the state government agencies that have steered its growth for over 200 years.

Kentucky Revised Statutes 171.500 specify that Kentucky state agencies are required to send their publications to KDLA. The Public Records Division (PRD) and State Library Services (SLS) at KDLA work together not only to provide access to the valuable information contained in state agency publications, but also to preserve the publications for future generations.

These two divisions have four major functions:

- Obtaining/identifying state agency publications in print and electronic formats;
- Cataloging/classifying state agency publications to provide public access through a searchable database or catalog;
- Providing information services to state agencies and Kentucky citizens in a timely manner; and
- Preserving state agency publications permanently.

This handbook will focus on two areas:

- Assisting state agency employees in meeting the legal requirements for sending publications to KDLA, and
- Providing information to Kentucky citizens about the state publications collection.
B) Value of State Publications Collections

The general public benefits from KDLA’s efforts to identify, obtain, preserve and provide access to state publications because:

- State publications provide a record of key government functions and activities.
- State publications contain a wide range of information and statistical data.
- Taxpayers save money through the centralization of information that has long-term value for future researchers.
- Archivists and reference librarians assist the public in finding state government information and publications.

State agency personnel benefit from KDLA’s efforts to identify, obtain and preserve state publications because:

- Publications will be cataloged into one global, searchable database.
- Reference librarians/archivists are available to assist the public and other government agencies in finding publications.
- A safety net is provided for a last remaining copy of out-of-print materials.
- Permanent, consistent hyperlinks for electronic publications will be maintained through the KDLA Catalog (http://kdla.kyvl.org).
- Agencies receive assistance with archival management and historical research and obtain advice on questions associated with statutory provisions governing access to public records.

C) Definitions

State publication means a publication in any format that is produced by the authority of, or at the total or partial expense of, a state agency; is required to be distributed under law by the agency; is publicly distributed outside the agency; or is displayed on a public agency web site or made available to the general public digitally by any other means. This may not include selected record material or ephemeral documents that are nonetheless distributed publicly by a state agency. It may also include material that is not slated for public distribution but falls within other parameters of a state publication (e.g., newsletters), if that material is determined to have sufficient intrinsic or historic value. (c.f., 725 KAR 1:040 Section 1 (6))

An electronic state publication is a publication created or distributed by a state agency to the general public in digital format, for example on an agency website.
State Agency means every state or office, department, division, bureau, board, commission and authority; every state legislative body, and officer, any agency thereof; and any other body which is created by state authority and which derives at least 25% of its funds from state authority. (c.f., KRS 171.410)

Public records are defined by Kentucky statute (KRS 171.410 (1)) as "all books, papers, maps, photographs, cards, tapes, disks, diskettes, recordings and other documentary materials, regardless of physical form or characteristics, which are prepared, owned, used, in the possession of or retained by a public agency."

All state publications are public (government) records, but not all public (government) records are state publications. For assistance managing other public (government) records, please contact KDLA’s State Records Branch Manager at 502-564-8300, ext. 237.

D) Is It a State Publication?

These questions will aid in determining whether a given document is a state publication.

1. Is it produced or funded by or for a state agency?
Material that is produced or funded strictly by a private entity with no relationship to a state agency is not a state publication. This is true even if the document is utilized by state agency personnel in their work, in which case it would be reference and informational material. If a publication is produced by a private entity for a state agency, or utilizing state agency funds, it is a state publication.

2. Is it intended for public distribution?
This may be difficult to judge given the advent of the Internet, the use of which implies the facilitation of public access. Material that may not have been distributed publicly in hard copy can easily be posted onto an agency website for public access. Consultation with state agency Records Officers might help in this regard.

3. Is the information in the document in the nature of an aggregation or a summary?
State publications tend to be those documents that summarize or document activities or trends over time. Also, publications may be narrower in scope, such as special projects commissioned by a state agency, but which summarize the findings or results of the project.

4. Is the information in the document likely to have enduring historical or research value?
State publications are maintained permanently because they document the activities of a state agency over time. Researchers may want to come back to these materials to investigate those activities and the effects they have on society at large. These documents may include those that are not necessarily intended for public distribution, but which serve to provide information to researchers, such as internal agency newsletters.

If you're still unsure whether your document is a state publication, contact your Records Officer, see http://kdla.ky.gov/records/recmgmtservices/Pages/StateAgencyRecordsManagementContacts.aspx, or contact the KDLA State Records Branch Manager at 502-564-8300, ext. 237 or email state.records@ky.gov.

E) History of the State Publications Program

State publications were officially recognized as important public records as early as 1839, when Kentucky lawmakers passed legislation to set aside a room in the Capitol for use as the State Library. Over the years, responsibility for maintaining state publications has changed many times. State publications have been stored in various places throughout the Commonwealth, including the Secretary of State’s office, the basement of the “Old Capitol” and the State Library facility at Berry Hill. The collection has been located in the current KDLA building since 1982 and continues to grow.

Over the years many inventories and descriptions of state publications have been published, beginning with reports made by the State Librarian to the State Legislature in the early 1800’s. The first extensive survey of state publications was conducted from 1908-1910 by Irene Tanner Myers on behalf of the American Historical Association. Despite the challenge of assessing records in the midst of a move from the old capitol into the new building, a detailed report of the extent and contents of state publications was published in 1910. About the same time (perhaps aided by Myers’s survey) another assessment was conducted by Adelaide Hasse. This was an effort to identify Kentucky’s state publications located in repositories throughout the United States, and these results were published in 1912 as Index of economic material in documents of the states of the United States. Kentucky, 1792-1904. In 1936, Dr. Thomas Clark oversaw a Works Progress Administration inventory of Kentucky’s public records, which included travel to the University of Kentucky where many records were stored at the time.

The first KDLA coordinator of State Publications began work in 1962. From 1962 to 1984 an annual checklist of Kentucky State Publications was published in paper format. Beginning in 1985, these checklists were produced monthly until 1993. An electronic database, the Kentucky State Publications Database, was used to store state publications bibliographic data from 1989 to 2005, and is available at http://www.e-archives.ky.gov/kdlasearch/wfsearchbytitle.aspx.

Beginning in 1992, KDLA and the Government Documents Roundtable of the Kentucky Library Association began a cooperative effort to identify significant state agency publications. This collection, called the Core Collection of State Publications, was microfilmed and made available to other libraries. In 1995, KDLA began issuing Kentucky State Publications Accessions (KSPA) in electronic format via e-mail, and in 1996 the KSPA was made available on the KDLA website where it was updated regularly until 2003. Links to specific electronic publications were provided, as well as links to other state agency websites.

Upon the retirement of State Publications coordinator in 2005, the Joint Committee of State Documents was formed with members from the Public Records Division, the State Library Services Division, and the Field Services Division.

To help preserve the increasing number of electronic publications, the Public Records Division created the electronic archives (e-Archives) where publications are being stored in digital format. The State Library Services' Collection Access Management Branch is following standard cataloging practices to create bibliographic access for all state publications, including the electronic versions of the publications that are in the e-Archives (http://kdla.ky.gov/records/e-archives/Pages/default.aspx).

F) Mission and Vision of the Joint Committee on State Documents

Mission
The Joint Committee on State Documents is a partnership effort between the Public Records Division and the State Library Services Division created to make decisions regarding the acquisition, accessibility, and maintenance of state publications, regardless of format, in order to meet the informational needs of the public and preserve a historical record of the work of state agencies.

Vision
A partnership between the Public Records Division and the State Library Services Division of the Kentucky Department of Libraries and Archives to ensure that the State Publications Program at KDLA acquires, to the greatest extent possible, state publications in all formats through state agency records officers; provides a user-friendly central point of access to state publications, including full text publications when available; and efficiently maintains and preserves state publications, including electronic publications in best possible format, for future use.
Section 2
Creating State Agency Publications

A) Bibliographic Guidelines for Print and Electronic Publications

Regardless of format, a publication's identifying properties (author, title, date of publication, website address) should be included so that future users will be able to cite it accurately. For electronic publications include the same properties, in the same order, as you would for print publications. If the electronic publication is in Adobe PDF, please include the properties in the header of the file.

With each publication it is important to let your audience know the who, what, when, where, and how (and sometimes the why) of its creation and distribution. This information should always be placed on a title page that immediately follows the cover of the publication. If your publication does not have a title page, then you may place information on the cover page. By having this information on your publication, you guarantee that, in the future, your own agency’s staff, as well as researchers in general, will be able to understand the context in which it was produced.

It is recommended that the following information be included:

- Full Title
  - Display the title prominently.
  - Place the title on the first page (that is, the title page) of the publication, preferably before the publisher's name or other pertinent information. If the publication has a cover, the title on the cover and on the first page should be identical.
  - Use words in the title that are descriptive of the publication’s content.

- Full name of issuing agency, name of state, and place of publication
  - Give credit to both the cabinet and to any specific agency, department, or division responsible for publication.
  - If the publication is the result of a cooperative effort of several agencies or organizations, mention all of them but list the coordinating or funding entity first, or in a way that identifies its special status.
  - If one agency or organization prepares the publication for another entity, give credit to both of them.

- Complete Website Address (if available electronically).
• Individual author(s) if appropriate
  o If it is your organization’s policy to credit employees for the works they produce, edit, or compile, mention them also.

• Date
  o Year of publication; or o Volume, issue number, and date for a periodical

• Edition Information
  o Edition number if published before and revised.
  o Reprint, if published with a new date but material is essentially unchanged.

Format and size in megabytes are other helpful information.
Section 3
Procedures for State Agency Contacts

A) List of Duties for Records Officers / State Agency Staff

State Agency staff in general can consult the agency’s Records Officer, as appointed by the agency head, though other staff may hold or share the responsibility for agency publications.

An agency’s Records Officer is responsible for sending three (3) copies of each report and publication issued on paper by that agency for general public distribution; and one (1) copy of each state publication in electronic format or issued for general public distribution on the agency’s website to the Department for Libraries and Archives, Public Records Division (PRD). Records Officers should forward publications to PRD on the date of issue. Electronic publications should be forwarded in Adobe Portable Document Format (PDF), as attachments to an email message, or as documents on a CD or DVD. (cf, 725 KAR 1:040 Section 2)

For guidance on acceptable publication formats, contact KDLA’s Technology Analysis and Support Branch Manager at 502-564-8300, ext. 242.

An agency’s Records Officer is also responsible for sending PRD a complete list, in writing, of the agency’s current state publications in all formats, annually, at the end of each fiscal year, and upon request. (cf. 725 KAR 1:040 Section 3)

An agency’s Records Officer is also responsible for acknowledging receipt of an Electronic Records Transmittal from KDLA. (cf, Appendix C)

B) Transfer guidelines

Agencies should send publications to KDLA at the time of the first printing or, if electronic, when placed on the agency web site. It is recommended that agencies establish a procedure to notify KDLA about new electronic publications.

For example an agency could:

- send the URL with any existing paper copy publications or
- notify staff via email when items are published electronically so that the URL can be included in the cataloging database.

Please note: Before you discard older state publications, you should contact your agency's records officer or KDLA's State Records Branch Manager at 502-564-8300, ext. 237 or email state.records@ky.gov.

C) Agency Contact Information

An agency's records officer is the first person to contact about the transfer of a State Publication to KDLA. A listing of State Agency Records Officers and contact information appears on KDLA’s website: http://kdla.ky.gov/records/recmgmtservices/Pages/StateAgencyRecordsManagementContacts.aspx.

If the publication is to be transmitted to KDLA electronically to become part of the Electronic Records Archives (e-Archives), contact the Manager of the e-Archives, 502-564-8300 ext. 244 or email statepubs@ky.gov.
KDLA's State Records Branch provides professional instruction and guidance in the transfer of records. For information and assistance, contact the Branch Manager at 502-564-8300, ext. 237.

KRS 369.102 defines "electronic record" as “a record created, generated, sent, communicated, received, or stored by electronic means.” Rapid changes in technology mean that file formats can become obsolete quickly and cause problems for an agency’s records management strategy. Agencies wishing to maintain records in an electronic format for more than 5 years should have a migration /conversion plan in place to ensure that their records are maintained in a readable format. Visit http://kdla.ky.gov/records/recmgmtguidance/Pages/elecrecmgmt.aspx for electronic records management guidelines.
