State’s Tight Revenue Environment Produces Special Challenges

The recently concluded off year session of the Kentucky General Assembly enacted a budget for the balance of the 2002-2004 biennium, and it is clear that all public agencies will have to stretch limited resources to meet public demand for services. Specific language in the adopted budget bill also directs agencies to limit their hiring through the end of the next state fiscal year. For those agencies which are already carrying a significant number of vacancies, this will mean reallocating responsibilities or redesigning service delivery among remaining staff in an effort to respond as effectively as possible to the ever growing needs of citizens. The Kentucky Department for Libraries and Archives (KDLA) currently has key positions vacant in its Archival Services and State Records Branches, among other areas, and that shortage is being keenly felt in State Archives and State Records Center (SRC) operations. In addition, SRC services to more than 60 agencies in all fifteen Executive Branch Cabinets and in the Legislative and Judicial Branches will be affected in another way, due to a restriction on amendments or increases to existing leases. The SRC, one of KDLA’s services most intensively used by state agencies, has grown steadily over the last fifteen years, and it needs adequate space to continue to meet those needs.

Among bills passed in the recent session with a records management impact was the House committee substitute to SB 165, which permits the state Revenue Cabinet to make available to the public mine maps or portions of mine maps, in electronic form, submitted by taxpayers to the Revenue Cabinet for ad valorem tax purposes that depict the boundaries of mined out parcel areas, with the caveat that these maps shall not be relied upon to depict the actual boundaries of those mined out parcel areas. There was also created a Kentucky Wireless Interoperability Executive Committee to advise the state’s Chief Information Officer on strategic wireless initiatives to achieve public safety voice and data interoperability. This is an area of tremendous growth in the state.
Newly Available at the State Archives

The Public Records Division (PRD) has just received an original “Register of Prisoners of the Kentucky State Penitentiary at Frankfort,” dated 1825-1847. This volume was presented to PRD by Mr. Rick Myrthue of Sunrise Beach, Missouri, who had purchased it from an internet auction service. Upon receipt of the book, Mr. Myrthue suspected that it might be a public record and contacted PRD with an offer to transfer the volume to us, asking only for the costs involved in his original purchase. Through a timely gift from the Friends of Kentucky Public Archives to cover these costs it was possible to acquire this record, and it is now available for research use.

The Register contains entries for prisoners incarcerated in the State Penitentiary as punishment for the commission of felonies. Each entry includes the name of the prisoner, date of reception into the prison, term of confinement, crime, date of release (if applicable), date of death (if applicable), date of pardon (if applicable), date of escape (if applicable), and remarks (“served out time,” “pardoned,” or other brief comments). There are a few entries dated as early as 1825, but most of the volume lists those prisoners received into the institution from 1830 to 1839. The dates of release of those prisoners continue to as late as 1847.

Although the amount of information listed for each prisoner is not extensive, the Register still provides valuable insights into the prison system of the era. George Dunbar (alias George Thornton) began serving 10 years for highway robbery in September 1827 but escaped in June 1828. He was brought back in August 1828, only to escape again in September 1833. Brought back once again, he was eventually pardoned in July 1836. William Abrams was sentenced to four years and six months for “stealing slaves” in March 1827, escaped once but was returned and had three more years added to his sentence, and was finally pardoned in 1834. There are several entries for prisoners listed as “free man of color” or “negro,” including Martin (no surname listed), who served two years for “aiding slaves to escape.”

Prison life was undoubtedly harsh, and the remarks sometimes state “died of typhus” or “died of consumption,” or merely “died.” If they stayed healthy, most prisoners served out their full terms, there being few instances of early release except through a governor’s pardon. Many governors did use their discretionary power in this area quite freely, and a number of the prisoners listed in the Register were recipients of their largesse. As noted above, some prisoners attempted to gain their own early release through escaping, but almost all of them were caught and brought back to the penitentiary sooner or later.

Our current collection of Registers of Prisoners at the Frankfort Penitentiary covers the years 1848-1938, so the newly accessioned volume is an especially valuable addition. Some of the later registers contain more comprehensive information, such as physical descriptions of the prisoners and the county from which they were sent, but the new volume is still an exceptional resource that was previously unavailable for the years 1825-1847.

The Public Records Division and the Friends of Kentucky Public Archives appreciate the efforts of Mr. Myrthue in finding the appropriate home for this important public record.

State Archives Receives Gift of 1816 Manuscript

The State Archives recently received an elaborate 1816 manuscript as a gift from the Rare Book School of the University of Virginia. The four page document, a handwritten invoice, is entitled A Bill of Carpenters and Joiner Work done on the State House at Frankfort, Kentucky by Mathew Kennedy & Jas. Ware and measured by Saml. Patterson & David McGowen this 18th day of September 1816. It contains detailed information on construction work done on the second state capitol of Kentucky. The document was part of a large miscellaneous collection given to the University of Virginia in the mid-1990s. The State Archives expresses its appreciation to Edmund Berkeley, retired Archivist of the University of Virginia, and to Professor Terry Belanger, Director, Rare Book School, University of Virginia, for this gift, which fills an important information niche in the State Archives’ holdings.

Honoring Dr. Clark: How you can participate!

The occasion of the 100th birthday of Dr. Thomas D. Clark is a wonderful chance for all of us to say a big “thank you” to a person who has devoted so much of his life to advancing the cause of archives. KDLA, in cooperation with the Friends of Kentucky Public Archives, will celebrate this event with a reception in his honor in its main lobby on July 11, 2003 at 2:00 p.m. Whether you can join us on that day or not, you can express your appreciation to Dr. Clark in a most appropriate way by making a contribution to the Thomas D. Clark Endowment Fund for Internships in Archival Administration. The Endowment Fund, established in 1985, helps train those young professionals who will be the next generation of archivists and manuscript curators. Contributions to the Endowment Fund, which is administered by the Friends, help sustain the internship program which bears his name and in which he believes so strongly. Only earnings on the principal of the fund are used to provide stipends for interns. All Friend’s life memberships go to the fund. Won’t you join us in supporting this effort to “ensure a future for our past?” Donations of any size are most welcome. Please use the form at the bottom of this page to make your contribution, and thank you for your support!

Enhancing Research at the State Archives

The Archives Research Room at the State Archives always has equipment or supplemental resource needs for which state funds are not available. This is more true today than ever before, with the state’s current fiscal crisis. Private donations have long played a key role in permitting the State Archives to fill these important gaps. Gifts to the Friends are tax deductible. Please make your check payable to: Friends of Kentucky Public Archives, Inc., and mail it to the address on the Friends’ membership form, below. We thank all of you who have provided assistance in this way throughout the past year. It is much appreciated!

The Friends of Kentucky Public Archives, Inc., is a not-for-profit membership organization of private citizens concerned with helping the Public Records Division of Kentucky’s Department for Libraries and Archives fulfill its role as a vital information link between people and government. The Friends’ organization supports the management, preservation, and use of Kentucky’s historic public records and serves as an advocate for the Kentucky State Archives, which the division manages. For further information, contact the Friends at P.O. Box 4224, Frankfort, KY 40604.

Count Fleet, shown here with jockey Johnny Longden up, was awkward as a youngster but proved his mettle as a juvenile and three-year-old, winning 16 of 21 races, including the 1943 Triple Crown. Count Fleet was both the offspring and sire of Kentucky Derby winners, the first “triple win” in Derby history. Longden, who died in February 2003 at 96 and rode more than 6,000 winners, was the only person to both ride and train a Kentucky Derby winner.
