undertaking. To include and we wish you only the best in the new Cybrarian system we can forget and this become a model of expansion. Please provide this support in achieving this, our public archives system. In our case and this become a model, Dr. Bellardo's retiring work and dedication have brought

Dr. Bellardo Resigns

June 1986

Dear friends and colleagues:

Dr. Bellardo will become Director of the Archives Historical Division and in those capacities and record administration, Dr. Bellardo will be assigned to those responsibilities and in the Kentucky Department for Libraries and Archives. The

For 17 years, Dr. Bellardo has been associated with

Board of Directors

friends who have been active in the history of the Archives have

who have been active in the history of the Archives have

who have been active in the history of the Archives have

The Archives Institute of Kentucky

The Archives Institute of Kentucky

The Archives Institute of Kentucky

The Archives Institute of Kentucky

The Archives Institute of Kentucky

The Archives Institute of Kentucky

friends who have been active in the history of the Archives have

who have been active in the history of the Archives have

who have been active in the history of the Archives have

The Archives Institute of Kentucky

The Archives Institute of Kentucky

The Archives Institute of Kentucky

The Archives Institute of Kentucky

The Archives Institute of Kentucky
The view of Margaret Ford's "History of the Kentucky Public Archives" is that in Kentucky, the first state to be settled, history is not about past actions and events, but about the present and future. The story of the Archives is one of continuous growth, adaptation, and innovation.

The Archives began in 1895 with a small collection of documents and records. Over the years, it has expanded to house a vast array of materials, including photographs, maps, manuscripts, and artifacts. The Archives' mission is to preserve and make accessible the state's history for the benefit of all Kentuckians.

The Archives' collections are used by researchers, students, and the general public to study Kentucky's past and understand the present. The Archives is committed to ensuring that the state's history is preserved for future generations.

The Archives is a vital component of Kentucky's cultural heritage, and it plays a crucial role in the state's identity. Through its collections and programs, the Archives helps to shape the way Kentuckians think about their past and how it shapes their present and future.

The Archives is located in Frankfort, Kentucky, and it is open to the public for research and education. The Archives is a testament to the importance of preserving history and ensuring that it is accessible to all.
Records needs assessment report of 1993, and the actual

...
your doctor and/or your employer.

Your medical records will be shared with your primary care provider, your specialty care providers, and any other providers who may need access to them for your ongoing care.

If you have any questions or concerns about your medical records, please contact the office where you received your care.

Dr. James C. Thomas, M.D.

Friends of Kentucky Archives

Public Archives

PREVIOUS PAGE SPONSORED BY THE FRIENDS OF KENTUCKY ARCHIVES

PREVIOUS PAGE SPONSORED BY THE FRIENDS OF KENTUCKY ARCHIVES