A Message from the President

Dear Friends,

Welcome to the Fall 1988 edition of the Friends of Kentucky Public Archives Newsletter. This issue is a celebration of the archives and the rich history they preserve. As we mark the 10th anniversary of the Friends of Kentucky Public Archives, it is fitting to highlight the work of the archives and the important role they play in preserving Kentucky's history.

The archives are a valuable resource for researchers, students, and the general public. They house a wealth of records, including government documents, personal papers, and photographs. These records provide a window into Kentucky's past and help us understand the state's development over time.

We hope that you find this issue informative and engaging. Please reach out to us with any questions or feedback. We value your support and look forward to continuing to serve the community.

Sincerely,
